Title

Totally Essential

As the 1990-1991 school year progressed Butler students realized that this school year was one of extreme change. It was a year to discover what was essential on campus and what was not.

Out of neccessity some things which had been considered essential traditions were altered. The Bulldog mascot received a new costume and fur color change from gray to brown. The old one, bought in 1985, was retired to storage in Irwin Library. Fraternity men had to move the ''laking'' ritual of dunking brothers after getting pinned or engaged, to the canal. The risk of electrocution from the new fountain in the reflecting pool made the event too dangerous.

Parking in front of Atherton, Residential College, Irwin and Jordan was removed to create a Butler Mall. The controversial project was part of the university's plan to beautify the campus. Jordan and Irwin also received face lifts as part of this project.

Academically many changes were discussed. The dream of creating a school of communications was shot down when it was decided that it was not needed on campus. Yet when adminstrators announced they were discussing ending the speech pathology program students protested all year long. Protest did not stop the university from dissolving the Holcomb Research Institute.

Socially, Butler had its first ever Spring Sports Spectacular, and Resco held it first all- campus event, the Resco Road Rally.

Security on campus was increased with additional lighting and the placement of security phones, which allow a student to call the security office in case of an emergency.

The War in the Middle East and the recession in America were topics of hot debate on campus. As some students left their studies to fulfill their obligations to the armed services, others went on peace marches. The announcement that tuition would raise again in 1992-1993, even though the country was economically depressed, caused students to write many letters of protest to the administration and the newspaper.

As these students argued for what they believed was right, they were forced to decide what they believed was essential. The administrators were also forced to make tough decisions for what were the best interests of the university. Overall, the school year was a chance for everyone to discover what was TOTALLY ESSENTIAL.

Left: Reserved parking behind Lilly Hall was altered slightly when pranksters taped their message on top of the physical plant parking signs. Several times throughout the year the physical plant workers found their parking spots behind the music building reserved for composers, music theory book writers, and fictional animals.

Totally Changing

Changes: The Butler Controversy

"I think having the mall when it is completed will make the campus look much better than the parking lots. Even if people have to walk further. Those who complain are too concerned with their own comfort (such as wanting to walk less) than the future of the university, " stated Scott Hatfield.

Addressing the issue of the new mall as well the other changes on campus, many students spoke out and did so loudly.

Collegian after Collegian contained letters to the editor constantly something on the changes, "I like the blue lights," "the mud pit?" "what about those not in Resco," and etc . . . abunded from public opinion.

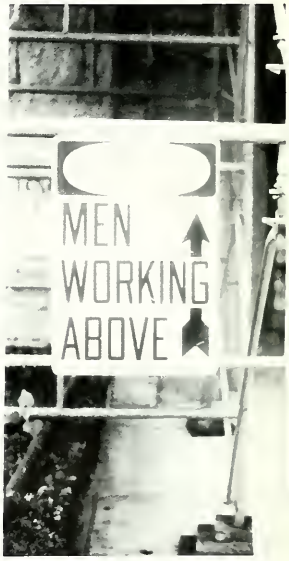
To the delight of many students, Resco was completed so that students were able to move in this fall. The cafeteria was completely finished and as of February all students with a meal plan were able to eat there. In the beginning only Resco inhabitants had access to the cafeteria. After an walk out from Ross and Schwitzer students, this issue changed.

While the mall continued to be a controversy, the scheduled completion before Homecoming did not go through and many students were upset. However, public opinion changed as spring approached, "I think the mall will be pretty when the grass grows," stated Kim Rebek.

While the grass was growing, Butler had blue lights, and emergency phones installed across campus as an safety feature. A student's location is immediately pinpointed when a student calls for help.

All in all, the changes continue to happen. Generally students approve as these changes are necessary to move Butler to a school of the future.

The renovations at Butler were not limited to the outside. Monique French and John Eletery use the new convenience store in the basement of Atherton. The store, in its first full year of operation, is run by the Follet Book Company.



Men Working Above, Men Working Below, Men Working — Butler students saw many of these signs this year as several projects were undertaken to improve the campus.

A Metamorphosis occurs

This year several changes took place at Butler. Not only was the mall changed, but a fountain was built, blue-safety light phones were installed across campus, Jordan walls were given a face lift, and the Tri-Delts built a new addition onto their house.

Though not all the changes were immediately welcomed by all students, most grew accustomed to all the work that took place.

"Sure, I was mad when I had to see the bulldozer in the mall for weeks, but think how nice it will look in the spring," stated Cindy Hellman.

Tracy Kepschett followed with an addition concerning the new fountain, "The fountain is a nice relaxing place to go to get away from the business and pressures of everyday tensions."

Change is a must to improve the quality of life. Butler constantly attempts to have this campus become the most beautiful one around.

Above: In the hopes of providing a hotel-like atmosphere the new Residential College was completed before the start of school. Students enjoyed many luxuries such as elevators, bathroom suites, computer rooms, and a cafeteria in the building.
Right: As the early morning mist rises, students are greeted once again with a view of the site for the controversial new mall.

"We have a tendency to take our safety for granted. At Marquette, a senior was shot to death with a sawed-off shot gun over a radio dispute. Our biggest problem here is a sexual assault case, but it's great that we have taken these measures to prevent our crimes from becoming more intense."
— Krista Boslooper

Below: A new beginning! An aerial view of the first weekend of the mall construction project shows the asphalt being torn from the ground.

Above: Renovations of the outside of Jordan Hall took place all year long. Several classes had to move to different sections of the building to escape the high level of noise from the machinery.

Left: "Watch those lakings, frat men!" The old custom was to "lake" an active when he got lavaliered, pinned, or engaged. However, with the addition of the new fountain, and the risk of electrocution, this tradition had to be moved to the canal.

Many of the latest movies are available to be rented in the convenience store in Atherton Center.

"The C-Club is a great place for students to gather. The renovations that have taken place have opened the C-Club up and made it inviting to the students."

Inside changes for dorms and Atherton

Butler's landscape was not the only thing that changed this year. The interiors of many buildings also changed.

One of the biggest changes was the completion of the Residential College. Its doors opened to allow full occupancy for the first time in the fall. Other features, such as the computer room, were also finished.

Ross and Schwitzer were not ignored either. Both halls received new bunk beds.

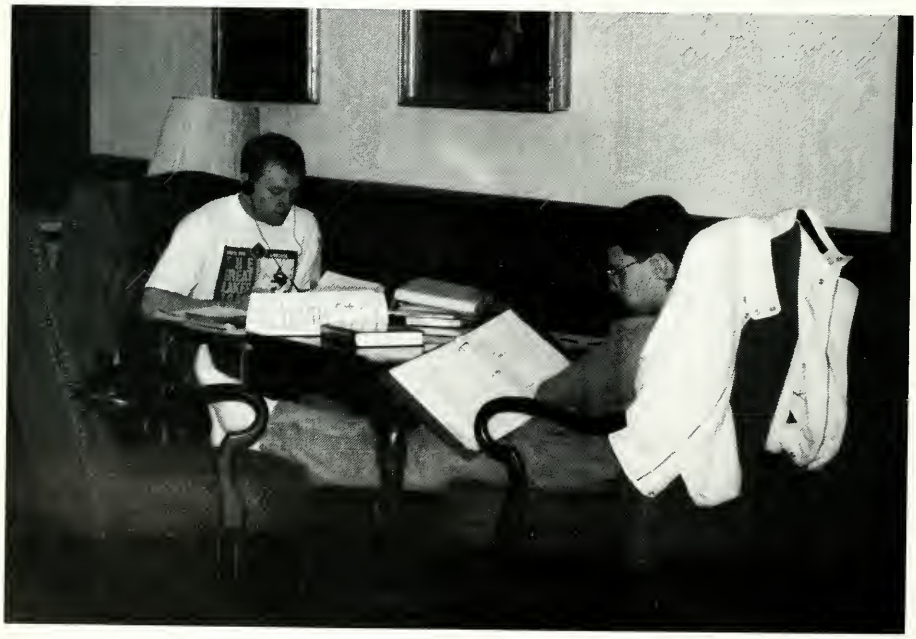
Pizza Hut personal pan pizzas were a welcomed addition to the C-Club. The pizzas could be purchased, or taken in place of supper for students with meal plans. Junior David Oberting checks out his selection.

Schwitzer also sported new furnishings in its lobby, recreation room, sunken lounge, kitchen and weight room. The old bicycle storage room was transformed into a dance/exercise area, complete with wall mirrors and stretch bars. Residential co-ordinator Robin Remich felt that, "The changes have helped the residents to feel better about where they live ... the Schwitzer image has gotten better."

Ross Hall, likewise received new lounge furniture. A raised floor, brass trim and blue booth and chair cushions were added to the C-Club. The store also added Pizza Hut, Dunkin Donuts and Columbo Frozen Yogurt to its list of suppliers.

Also in Atherton Center the Bookstore was remodeled and the south study lounge was refurbished. The south study lounge was set aside as a place where any students could go to study.

Stilts come in handy for this construction worker as he caulks around the ceiling in the Fieldhouse. The final finishing touches to the Fieldhouse's massive remodeling took place in the fall.



Peer tutoring and study tables in many subjects took place in the refurnished south study lounge in Atherton.

"The new weight room in Schwitzer is great and well used. It's not always convenient to go to the Fieldhouse to exercise."

Laura Workman

Residential College, or Resco as it is nicknamed, had all of its rooms ready for student and professor living quarters for the first time in the fall.

Did you know that 1991 is the

Drift's 100th Anniversary

In 1891 the first annual yearbook was published. It was written by seniors in fraternities. The editor chose the name "Drift" as he was sitting by the banks of a river. He saw leaves and twigs floating down stream, finally lodging themselves in the banks and bends. He believed that the "drifts" were a symbol of the information included in a yearbook.

The first yearbook is very different than this book. It is mostly text, with only one page out of 108 having pictures.

That first yearbook suffered with the United States through some of the harder times of our history. Between 1918 and 1920 the Drift was not published because of World War I. In 1932 and 1933 publication stopped once again because of the great Depression. The yearbook did not stop publication during World War II, however in 1943 it greatly centered the coverage around the war, since Butler was a training center for the Army and Navy.

In 1951 the Drift staff moved to Atherton Center, where the office has remained for the past 40 years.

When Butler changed its logo and symbol in 1983 the yearbook name also changed to the Carillon, after the bell tower, however in 1986 the name was changed back to the Drift.

Over the past 100 years the Drift has survived many changes, in itself, the campus, and the world, yet it still remains a totally essential part of Butler tradition.

Totally Seniors

Seniors leave Butler — a Butler which throughout their stay has changed drastically and keeps improving . . .

For the senior class, "change" has been the one essential factor of their lives here at Butler. Some of this change has occurred in the seniors. Some of the campus changes witnessed by the senior class include President Bannister taking office after President Johnson, the building of the Residential College, the renovation of Hinkle Fieldhouse, the new Holcomb fountain, as well as many other changes which are too numerous to put forth.

The changes in the senior class parallel those in the renovation of Jordan Hall. Jordan's renovation has taken place since the seniors were freshman (and even before that). The changes are still going on and probably will continue after the seniors leave, making its renovation a slow gradual process. Likewise the seniors have gradually changed over the years but still contain attributes that they had before coming to Butler. This process has occurred over a period of time, allowing the old to be chipped away and new attitudes and ideas to take their place. One thing that can be said of the senior class is that they are not the same individuals now as they were when they first came to Butler.

After voting took place in Jordan Hall, the seniors decided to give Butler University a marble seal as their gift.

Totally Alive

There is more to student life than just studying — a fact Butler students found out very quickly! Each weekend, Greek housing units as well as the Residence Halls sponsored all-campus events.

In the fall, students were scared by the Phi Delts and Thetas during the Haunted House, a part of the annual Halloween Hysteria. While the Lambda Chi's provided great fall fun to the campus during their Watermelon Bust.

Geneva Stunts brought all the budding stars from their homes as each pair composed of housing unit members and commuters attempted to win the first place trophy.

While at Hinkle and away, Butler students supported the extraordinary efforts of both the men and women's basketball teams.

Spring Sing arrived as well as Alpha Chi Omega's Frisbee Fling, Phi Psi 500 reeved up students, while people got psyched for the Lamda Chi Alpha Teeter-Totter-A-Thon. This year the Alpha Phi's sponsored their first Bounce for Beats. The Pi Phi's Ran for Life and the Phi Delts had their 4th Annual Greg Party. Resco Road Rally appeared for the first time, and it was another year in the Rat Race for Ross Hall.

All in all, the year was jam packed with activities. Butler students made their weekend minutes count as much as their weekdays. Who had time to go home — or to classes?

Coach "Bart" celebrates Homecoming victory

Butler beats Valparaiso 37 to 0

Homecoming at Butler held dual meanings for Bob Bartolomeo, for not only did he celebrate a return to his Alma Matter, but also a football victory of 37 to 0 against Valparaiso, his first year as head coach for the team.

Bartolomeo started at Butler in '73 and received his B.S. in education in '77. He continued his studies at Butler as a graduate assistant until he received his Masters degree in '79.

Bartolomeo found coaching at B.U. to be "exciting", "challenging", and an "honor". "Everyone who plays has aspirations and hopes to coach where he played. Butler is a unique place. We do a great job of combining academics and athletics. (Athletics) . . . teaches self-descipline, teaches you to do things you don't like to do."

He also stated however, that it was "definitely different" being a coach now instead of a player. "You are the one making the decisions. It is frustrating seeing what should be done."

Bartolomeo also thought the homecoming activities had "gotten 100% better" since he was a student. "Students are more involved, the whole students approach is better, very positive." He especially enjoyed the fireworks and pep rally.

Coach Bartolomeo summed up his feelings toward homecoming by saying, "Every game is important, but this one had something special."

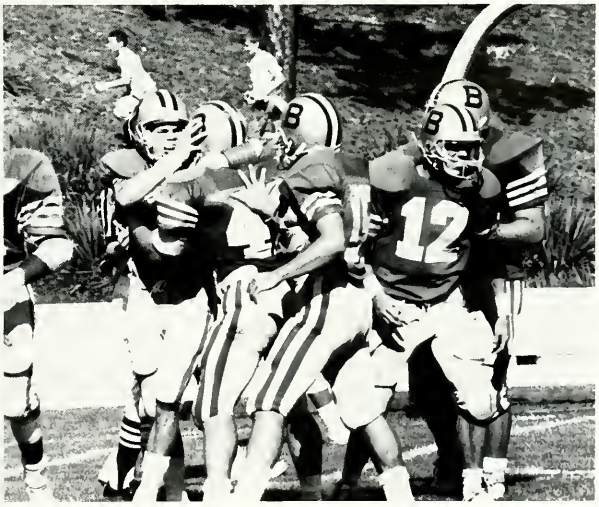
Rows of "B's" on the team's helmets shine across the bowl as the Bulldogs get ready for their pregame ritual before running onto the field, the mass huddle and cheer.

Homecoming Queen Jennifer Stafford, of Kappa Alpha Theta, beams with joy after accepting her crown. She was escourted by David Riggins.

Butler's offensive line clears the way for their teammate to break through the line with the ball in his arms for a first down. Butler trounced Valparaiso 37 to 0.

Coach Bob Bartolomeo alumna of Butler, watches his team with anticipation. "Every game is important," he stated, "but this one (homecoming), had something special." This was his first year as head coach.

Band Member Amy Schmitt stands at attention, waiting to play the "War Song" as the team comes on the field at pre-game. This was the last game for the band's old uniforms, seen here. They changed into their new uniforms for halftime.

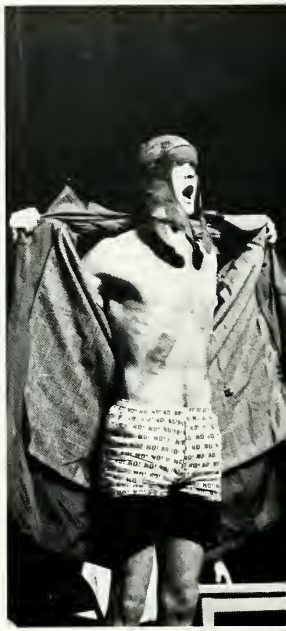


Bulldogs congratulate each other with hugs and pats on the back after a successful field goal against Valparaiso. Butler beat Valparaiso 37 to 0.

"We are here to pump you up!" exclaims Hanz and Franz, Phi Psi Pledges Chris Johas and Ron Povinelli. Phi Psi's took first place with their "pumped up" act.

"When you — watch the bulldogs, have a — splash of spirit — " parodies the Alpha Chi pledge class to the "Flintstone" theme song after their game of Family Feud.

Above:"Lost? Come to the island of Butler where the girls are pretty and the guys are great!" The Kappa pledge class finished their act with an uplifting homecoming song.



Right: "Bomp! Wrong answer!" Delt pledge Dan Baldwin bares his chest once again in response to a wrong answer. Delts played their own original game of Family Feud.

Freshmen skits gives an ethusiastic prelude to Homecoming

Excitement filled the air as people filled Clowes Hall on October 12 for the annual Freshmen skits. Papers rustled and whispers were heard until the curtain went up for the first act.

Eleven housing units participtated this year with acts. Each skit had to follow this year's Homecoming theme which was "A Splash of Spirit."

The women of Kappa Alpha Theta showed their spirit by dancing onto the stage and into the hearts of the audience to the tune of, "Do You Love Me?"

The women of Alpha Chi Omega had their own version of Family Feud, while the women of Kappa Kappa Gamma sailed the S.S. Butler.

The women of Pi Beta Phi had a church chat session as well as the men of Phi Kappa Psi.

Alpha Phi's pledge class showed their spirit with "Splish, Splash I was Taking a Bath." The men of Tau Kappa Epsilon had a good showing with their freshmen at Butler's skits.

The women of Delta Delta Delta showed life in the sea with their own live mermaid. The Lambda Chi pledge class had the curtain closed on their act, because they went over the time limit.

The evening ended with Phi Kappa Psi winning first followed by the Alpha Phi's in second place and the Delta Delta Delta's in third.

"Preparing for freshmen skits was hectic and frustrating," stated freshmen Alpha Chi pledge Cindy Hellman, "but overall we had fun and it was a great experience."

Above: "Do you love me?" Thetas pose one last time before the curtain came down on their act.

New Director for a New Beat

The marching band

Get ready for a good time when the Butler University Marching Band (B.U.M.B.) takes the field at fall football games or breaks the silence of time-outs at winter basketball games. Led by drum major Dale Preston, the almost 75 member group claims that it was the one hour PE credit that first lured them into joining, but it soon became more than just a class — it became a family. A family that, according to freshman Teresa Snodgrass, was "always out for fun."

This year's theme for the band seemed to be "out with the old and in with the new" with all of the changes that went on. David McCullough took over as director bringing many fresh ideas. Out on the field, crowds may have noticed a new group performing with the band — a flag corps joined the Half-time Honeys in adding excitement and flair to all of the band's exhibitions. New uniforms designed by Mr. Hochkoppel were the talk of returning members as well as helping to present a pleasing appearance to the crowds.

With approximately eight hours of practice each week, marching band takes dedication that not all college students possess. Not only did the band perform pre-game, post-game, and seven different half-time shows, but they also performed at Homecoming, an Indianapolis Ice Hockey game, and the opening of a new Toyota plant downtown. The trumpet section also performed at the dedication of the fountain here on campus. The season ended with a banquet at Robertson Hall.

Raising the spirts of a crowd isn't always easy, as any band member can tell you, but this year's marching band, with all of their hard work and dedication, did an excellent job.

During one of the marching band's regular pre-game warm-ups, David Ritterskamp seems to be wishing that he had two more hands! He sports one of the band's new uniforms.

JCFA presents Oklahoma!

Production combines the talents of students from many departments

Under the direction of Bernard Wurger, the Theatre Department presented Rodgers and Hammerstein's Oklahoma! the first two weekends in October. The show was presented in Lilly Theatre 160, with some unusual challenges.

Oklahoma! was chosen because a former dance instructor with the Jordan College of Fine Arts, Betty Gour was a dancer, and later ballet mistress, in the original National Company of Oklahoma! for twelve years. Miss Gour remembered most of the original choreography by Agnes DeMille, which Michelle Jarvis adapted to fit the JCFA production.

One of the unique problems in adapting the choreography was that the production was performed in the round. This was a challenge for not only the dancers, but also the actors. Lilly 160 productions are usually done with the proscenium staging.

Another unique challenge was putting the show together in one month. Musical director Michael Hayden taught the cast the music in about one week, which included such pieces as "Oh, What a Beautiful Morning," "The Farmer and the Cowman," and the title song, "Oklahoma."

Cast members as well as facutly agreed the best accomplished challenge was combining all the JCFA departments to put on this show. The cast contained students and faculty from the dance, music, theatre, and radio — television departments.

The cast included: Sam Van Ness as Curley McClain, Lisa Ormiston as Laurie Williams, Alice Williams as Aunt Eller Murphy, Christopher Richard as Jud Fry, Anne Penny as Ado Annie Carnes, Eric Dillner as Will Parker, and Noah Simon as Ali Hakim.

Weary of the traveling salesman's tricks, stern Aunt Eller (Alice Williams) tells the womanizing Ali Hakim (Noah Simon) to get lost, in the musical Oklahoma!

"Oh, What a Beautiful Morning", sings Sam Van Ness, performing the character Curley McClain, as he starts the musical in tune with the first song.

Young women and their escorts bring basket lunches to be auctioned off for charity in the Theater Department's presentation of Oklahoma!

Aunt Eller, played by Alice Williams, tries to consol her niece, Laurey, played by Lisa Ormiston, when she is having problems deciding which man she should go with to the dance.

Curly, (Sam Van Ness), tries to convince Laurey, (Lisa Ormiston) to take a ride with him to the barn dance by singing "The Surrey with the Fringe on the Top."

Nutcracker

Fire does not stop show

Fire, caused by an electrical short in the Christmas tree lights, did not stop the Butler Ballet from presenting their annual Christmas favorite, The Nutcracker.

During the first act of the Thursday night performance smoke started to fill the stage when a short occured in the lights of a Christmas tree background. The tree, which was raised from the floor for the show, was quickly lowered. Under the stage the problem was fixed, while the dancers above did not skip a single beat. The tree was repaired in time for the performance the next day. All other shows were presented without incident to sold-out audiences in Clowes Hall.

The ballet company received help from several university ensembles in order to present the show. The Butler University Symphony Orchestra performed the Tchaikovsky score; a major undertaking which in the past had been performed by the Indianapolis Symphony. Children from the Jordan College Academy of Dance, Butler Gymnastics, and the Indianapolis Children's Choir lended their talents to the Christmas tradition.

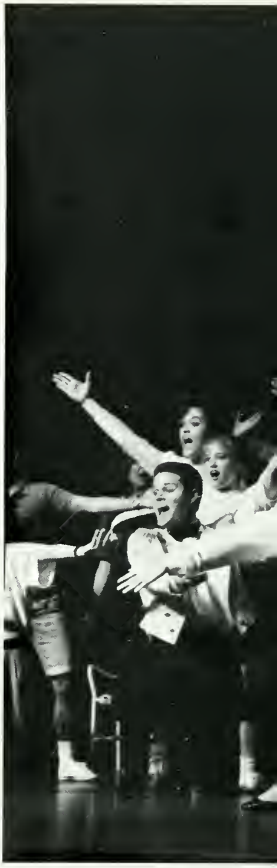
Geneva Stunts

Entertainment with Style



Iiiiiiit's Saturday Night Live! With your hosts, Tara Todd and Greg Lineweaver! — Well, almost! It was a Saturday night, but not a T.V. show. It was Geneva Stunts 1990.

Reaching deep into the recesses of their mind, the directors from each housing unit, created a fantasy show based upon popular T.V. shows, movies, and cartoons.

The women of Schwitzer Hall and the men of Lambda Chi Alpha exhibited a rather macabre sense of humor with their rendition of "Its' a Wonderful Death," which won them a first place trophy.

The Men and Women Commuters and Members of Residential College placed second overall with "Life is but a Dream ... Boat!" While the women of Kappa Alpha Theta and the Men of Phi Kappa Psi followed a close third with "Scooby-Doo Takes the Grammys."

The women of Pi Beta Phi and the men of Delta Tau Delta began the show with "A Bulldog Weekend — MTV." Traveling to the land of fantasy, the women of Kappa Kappa Gamma and the men of Sigma Chi entertained Butler students with "A Tale of a Genie Bottle and Forty-Two Thieves."

The women of Alpha Chi Omega and the men of Sigma Nu followed with "Birthday in 'Toon Town." While the women of Delta Gamma and the men of Tau Kappa Epsilon performed "You're Living a Fairy Tale, Kid!"

Before intermission, the women of Alpha Phi and members of Ross Hall showed their interpretation of "The Little Mermaid," — excuse me, make that — Barmaid!

The second act began with the women of Delta Delta Delta and the men of Phi Delta Theta and their, "If Wishes Came True." Finishing the evening were the three acts which won first, second, and third place for the evening.

Though not the much adored and admired Saturday Night Live most students are familiar with, Geneva Stunts 1990 provided Butler students with an evening filled with fun, laughter, and good entertainment.

All Campus Fun

Hysteria a success

On October 25 and 26 the Phi Delta Theta fraternity and the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority held the annual Halloween Hysteria. The main attraction was the Phi Delta Theta house, which was transformed into a haunted house for the event. The Phi Delts had to close their kitchen and eat at the Theta house while the haunted house was in operation. The house drew in a large crowd from both the campus and the community. The proceeds from the event went to the philanthropies of the Phi Delts and the Thetas; the Lou Gehrig's disease and CASA respectively. A costume contest was held to determine a count and countess. Diana Layton of Alpha Phi was crowned countess and Jon Richter of Sigma Chi was crowned count.

Watermelon Bust

Lambda Chi Alpha held their annual Watermelon Bust on September 20. This popular All-Campus event was Lambda Chi's way to have fun and get the campus involved. Over one hundred watermelons were used for the many different contests, which included seed spitting and watermelon throwing. A Queen contest was also held, with the winner being Adrienne Gits of Ross Hall.

The S A All-Nighter

The Student Assembly All Nighter rivaled well with last year's success of Mardi Gras Night. The All-Nighter took place on Friday, January 25, beginning at 9:00 at night and lasted until 2:00 in the morning. The night started off slow — perhaps due to the late arrival of the scheduled reggae band, Identity. Waiting for the band, everyone made good use of the C-Club's much-welcomed yogurt machine, which offered free pineapple and vanilla yogurt. The atmosphere of the night was well set. People wore blue, yellow, and pink leis; the food table was filled with such Hawaiian tastes as pineapples and bananas, and the walls were decorated with posters of tropical places, portholes, and even starfish.

As more and more people filled the C-Club, the noise level rose, and it became obvious that everyone was anxious for the band to arrive. Opening for Identity was a comedienne, Diana Alaimo, with an open, coarse routine. She answered calls of "Rosanne" and other heckles with definite gestures and a direct challenge to join her on stage. Once on stage, the hecklers did not quite follow her instructions and ended up dancing around her suggestively. After a few complaints about Indiana drivers and insensitive men, Alaimo said goodbye to an appreciative audience. Everyone looked forward to the band's performance and greeted Identity enthusiastically. The members of the band were alive and eager to play, and the lead singer apologized for showing up late before shifting into the rhythms of reggae music. Soon the packed C-Club had people dancing throughout it — on the main floor, in the back, and even in the booths. Those who did not dance tried to find any seat where they could see the band. Some pulled chairs up in front of the stage, working their way in between dancers, while people who wanted a better view perched themselves on top of wall and booth dividers. Identity received great applause from all; the band was definitely a success.

The band's playing and the crowd's dancing were interrupted briefly for several door prize drawings. Small prizes were given away such as Track's gift certificates, coupons for a tanning salon, frisbees, and an answering machine. Then the time for the big drawing came — the Spring Break trip. One name was called after another, but since the winner had to be present to claim the prize, none of them won. Finally, after a number of called names (and a great deal of frustrated cries from their friends), the name Michelle Young was called — and excited screams came from the crowd. Michelle Young came forward and claimed the Spring Break trip.

Spring Sports Makes a Splash

Early in the morning of February 23, 1991, a gigantic splash could be heard across the campus. What could it be? It seemed to be coming from the illustrious Hinkle Field House. The uproar was coming from the fact that President Geoffrey Bannister was being sent off the diving board by Mike Murphy and Matt Webb into the cool water of the pool. This was their prize for meeting Bannister's challenge of beating him in three consecutive games of billiards.

This was just one event that occurred at the first all-night Spring Sports Spectacular. Starting at 8:00 pm Friday night and lasting until 8:00 am Saturday, the event placed housing units against one another in tug-of-war, an obstacle course, volleyball, inner tube races, and indoor soccer to name a few of the games. The event was sponsored by Student Assembly and several area businesses (Domino's Pizza, Butler Bookstore, Video Towne, etc.).

For the women of Kappa Kappa Gamma it was a triumphant evening as they took overall honors for the women. In the men's competition, the men of Tau Kappa Epsilon took the number one position. Besides some possible broken nails, bruised knees, and pride being shattered, all in all it was a Spectacular evening.

Butler Music

Chorale, Symphonic Wind Ensemble and Symphony Orchestra

The Jordan College of Fine Arts is home to many different musicians' ensembles. One of these is the Butler Chorale, led by Michael Shasberger. This past year the choir saw a lot of work for a number of performances. The vocalists began with an all-day High School Festival and a concert that same evening. Then in December, the Chorale joined the Symphonic Wind Ensemble and the University Choir for the "Rejoice!" concert at the Cathedral of Saints Peter and Paul.

Second semester, the group went on tour to Florida during spring break. The tour included concerts in Fort Lauderdale, Orlando (Disney World and Epcot Center), Tampa and Fort Myers. These performances took place in various churches, hotels and high schools. After returning home, the Chorale gave the tour concert of Mozart's Requiem at North Methodist Church.

Another JCFA organization is the Symphonic Wind Ensemble, led by William Hochkeppel. The group began the year with the October concert "Music for Chamber Winds." Their November concert "Dreams and Fairy Tales" included a guest appearance by President Geoffrey Bannister, who narrated The Pied Piper of Hamelin. The concert featured David Maslanka's A Child's Garden of Dreams, and the composer himself came to Butler and commented on his piece. Maslanka's visit included discussions with music theory classes and composition students and meals with faculty and students, as well as his concert appearance. The band ended the semester with their joint concert with the vocalists — "Rejoice! A Christmas Festival."

In February, the Wind Ensemble performed for the area's honored high school bands. They went on to accompany the Mid Winter Ballet's performance of "Lenny." Their spring concert of the repertoire they had planned to play in Europe was on April 21, and the ensemble finished the year by playing at Commencement.

The band's performances were very successful; however, Wind Ensemble had one big disappointment. Their spring tour to Europe was cancelled. It would have been impossible to ensure the safety of a large group of Americans overseas with the hostilities the war caused around the world; so it was decided that the trip would have to be postponed. The band had planned a series of concerts in Germany, Austria, and Hungary.

Other musicians participate in JCFA's Symphony Orchestra, led by Jackson Wiley. The orchestra's first concert was in October. They performed Gustav Mahler's Symphony No. 3 in its entirety with the assistance of the women of the University Choir, the Indianapolis Children's Choir, and guest contralto soloist Vikki Vibbert. Next, the strings of the orchestra performed at Lafayette Jefferson High School. November 30 through December 2, the full orchestra accompanied Butler Ballet's Nutcracker for seven performances in Clowes Hall.

The Symphony Orchestra began the second semester with the annual Concerto Concert. This involved the winners of the Concerto Contest — Leigh Anne Essig, Luke Reese, Shane Samaniego, Moira Smith, and Leah Wolfe — performing their solos with the orchestra. Then they accompanied the Mid — Winter Ballet's performances of The Tender Land and "Graduation Ball". The orchestra's last performances were in Clowes' production of Susannah. The opera starred Sharon Searles, Michael Shasberger, and Steven Stolen — three members of JCFA faculty.

The orchestra had one more task this year — finding a new conductor. Jackson Wiley retired after an impressive career. The January Arts Indiana magazine ran an article covering Wiley's retirement and quoted one student as saying, "As far as I'm concerned, Jackson Wiley can never be replaced." Though that opinion was shared by many, the conductor had to be replaced, and four applicants (narrowed down from a great number of interested directors) were auditioned in February and March. While the orchestra welcomed its new leader, it also said good-bye to the talented and respected Jackson Wiley.

The Tender Land

Message of promise is lasting theme

Students and faculty from the Jordan College of Fine Arts Opera Workshop and Department of Theatre joined together to present The Tender Land, an opera in three acts. The opera, by librettist Horace Everett and composer Aaron Copland, was performed by two casts of singers as well as an ensemble of dancers.

The story from The Tender Land, takes us to the American Midwest, at a time and place where dreams are easily born but just as easily lost, and where plans and promises are lost to reality. But through it all is the promise of new beginnings and hope for tomorrow. In short, it takes us to a place not unlike our own world.

Under the stage direction of Laurel Goetzinger — the musical direction of Michael Shasberger, the cast brought life to the people of The Tender Land and truth to its music. With the assistance of Larry White, dance was included to reflect the characters and their relationships.

With a nation at war and the future in doubt, the opera left us with this important message: "The promise of ending in right understanding is peace in our own hearts and peace with our neighbor. The promise of living, the promise of growing, the promise of ending is labor and sharing and loving."

Above: The Circle of Life is expressed through the choreography of the dances in The Tender Land. The opera gave the audience a powerful glimpes into life in rural America.

Right: Ma Moss (Najwa Loh) invites Mr. Splinters (Jeff Quick) to a party later that evening while Beth (Michele McConnell) eavesdrops from the porch.

Richard Radcliff and Jennifer Bleill convey the emotions of The Tender Land's characters through dance. The choreography was written by Butler University professor, Larry White.

Ma Moss (Najwa Loh) comforts her daughter (Amy Shutters) as Laure struggles with establishing her identity as an adult.

Above: Laurie, performed by Gina Allen sings of her dreams and wishes for a bright future and better life. The music for The Tender Land was written by Aaron Copland, one of America's greatest composers who had died earlier in the school year.

"It's Spring Sing '91"

Spring Sing is a time honored tradition at Butler that needs no introduction. This year was the one hundred and first anniversary of the YMCA sponsored student extravaganza.

Those who were not there missed an upbeat and entertaining performance. The night began with a resounding performance of the Star Spangled Banner by the "B' Naturals. Sam VanNess and Anne Penny, the co-hosts for the evening, used their talent and personality to make the program flow smoothly.

Each of the nine acts was enthusiastically done. The themes of the acts ranged from the world of music in "Sing Out" to the weather in "Weather Or Not to Sing" to love in "Medley D'Amour". Arguments as to which is "The Better Half" among the sexes, traveling in "Are We There Yet", and what is "Too Hot to Handle" were also subjects of acts.

Disguised as a bunch of birdwatchers and chickens, the women of Kappa Kappa Gamma and the men of ResCo. swooped in to take First Place and the Musicality Award back to their roosts for their performance, "This Act is 'For the Birds'". Second Place overall went to the men of Delta Tau Delta, commuter women, and the women of Schwitzer Hall for their "Rhythm and Blues". The Spirit award, along with Third Place in the overall competition, for this years's festivities went to the women of Alpha Phi and the men of Phi Delta Theta for their patriotic medley of songs in "Do You Hear The People Sing".

President Geoffrey Bannister was on hand for the event. Other awards given were: the Outstanding Freshmen Award to Tim Sweeney and Renee Tabben, the Alcohol Awareness Award to Lambda Chi Alpha, and the Lamp of Wisdom to Peer Educators.

The evening concluded with entertainment by the Jordon Jazz Singers while the judges tallied the final scores. Well, that's just a small glimpse of this superb evening. May the tradition live on...

"The Better Half" act with students dressed up as men on one side and women on the other may not have won any awards, but got many laughs from the audience.

Totally Pictured

Being an undergraduate in college is very different from those same years in high school. Many consider college to be the biggest change in a person's life. But here at Butler, there are lots of activities to help make the transition easier. Sororities and fraternities, honor and service organizations, study tables and professional groups are available to join. There are also the YMCA Freshman weekend and freshman skits, Geneva Stunts and Spring Sing, the all-campus TKE Fall Fest, Lamda Chi Alpha Watermelon Bust, Phi Delta Theta Halloween Hysteria, and formals for every occassion imaginable.

It takes a lot to get in the academic mode for all students. Now we know why all of the adults kept telling us "college is nothing like high school." But study tables and professors are always around to help and eventually the ball starts rolling. Mid-terms and finals are evident by the number of students who sought knowledge in the C-Club into the wee hours of the morning — a book in one hand and a cup of coca-cola or coffee in the other.

Students go through alot of changes as undergraduates, but we all have to agree that undergrads at Butler are Totally Cool.

.eft: "Who will the winner be?" wonders the minds of Butler students in Geneva Stunts as well as those in the audience, students from each housing unit as well as commuters participate in the annual stunts, skits and Spring Sing.

Alpha Chi Omega

The Alpha Chi's once again counted the days til Frisbee Golf. Frisbee Golf is an all campus event the Alpha Chi's hold every spring. The money raised at the event went to their philanthropy, The Alpha Chi Omega Foundation.

The Alpha Chi's had two queens in the fall. Susanna Rains won the Ross Hall Rat Race and Brooke Oliver won the Sigma Chi Derby Days crown. The Alpha Chi house also won the flag football championship.

Alpha Chi Omega's 1990 pledges were initiated on March 1, 1991 which was also their Hera Day.

Those Phis. They started off the year with a bang by taking a wonderful pledge class. The Phis did not stop there. They kicked off the all-campus events with Sweepskates and raised $1500 for their philantrophy, the American Heart Assoc. Their pledges picked up from there and proved how great they were by taking second place in Freshman Skits, and one of them, Diana Layton, winning Phi Delta Theta's Halloween Hysteria Queen title.

Late in the Fall, the Alpha Phis paired up with Lambda Chi Alpha for the Pantry Raid. They collected even more food than last year from neighborhood homes to donate to a local food bank. The Phis were able to help out the radio station, WZPL, by passing out flyers at Colts football games. In turn, ZPL helped them out by kicking off their annual 36-hour trampoline marathon to raise money for the American Heart Assoc. Valentine's Day was the perfect time to raise more money for our hearts.

Their three sweethearts, Suzie Palmatier (Sigma Nu), Carmen Notestine(Delta Tau Delta), and Tara Todd (Phi Kappa Psi), kept busy congratulating the fraternities' new initiates. They were excited about the Indy 500 as they cheered on their Princess, Leslie Crosley!

Alpha Kappa Alpha

Although Kappa Chapter of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc. was chartered at what was then Butler College in 1920, the minority population at Butler has not been enough for Kappa Chapter to sustain their chapter — until now. The spring of 1991 brought many changes to Butler, one of those being the addition of the eighth sorority on campus, Alpha Kappa Alpha. A historically African-American sorority, Alpha Kappa Alpha has a membership of over 120,000 college women. Alpha Kappa Alpha is dedicated to improving college life for all women, and helping the community. Some of Kappa Chapter's activities this past year have been an Easter egg hunt for Building Blocks Academy, a research project for the Sickle Cell Anemia Foundation, and bowling to benefit Big Brothers and Big Sisters. Kappa Chapter does not have just one philanthropy, but prefers to donate money to a variety of charities, from United Negro College Fund to Homes for Black Children. Butler can look forward to many more AKA's working to improve both themselves and the community.

Delta Delta Delta

The Delta Lambda chapter of Delta Delta Delta was surprised to come back to school last August to find their house under construction. Because of delayed permits, the chapter was forced to put off construction of their new addition until late in the summer. Unfortunately, chapter members had to deal with hammering, sawing, a leaking roof, and construction workers during pre-rush week. Despite the inconveniences, the chapter had an excellent rush and were very proud of their new pledge members. Fall semester at Delta Lambda continued to go well when the new addition was completed in late October. The chapter ended their semester by making care packages for Butler students, an activity done at the end of every semester to raise money for their philanthropy, Cancer Research for Children. Approx. $4,000 was collected and the chapter was very pleased to present The James Whitcomb Riley Hospital for Children with their gift.

When the chapter returned after winter break they were happy to find out that they had had the third highest grades on campus during the fall semester. Chapter members welcomed back Karen Sasveld, Rhonda Webb, and Amy VanMetre who had been studying abroad in England, Australia, and Spain, respectively. The chapter kicked off its spring open rush with the theme "Just Tri It" in March, and a few days later welcomed then the new pledge members into Tri Delta. Delta Lambda is looking forward to Fall '91 at Butler as they plan a Tri Delt all campus event, called Delta's Rockin' for Riley to be held on September 14, 1991. Tri Delta's continue to be an active part of Butler's campus and look forward to returning in the fall to welcome Butler's new freshmen.

Delta Gamma

Delta Gamma was vey busy during the year. They achieved first in grades for the fifth semester in a row.

The Delta Gammas were also active in other organizations on campus. The president of YMCA, Student Assembly, and editor of the Collegian were all Delta Gammas.

Delta Gamma's all-campus event and fund raiser for their philanthropy, sight conservation and aid to the blind, was held in April.

Kappa Kappa Gamma

The women of Kappa Kappa Gamma had a very successful year on Campus. They won overall in Sigma Chi Derby Days, at TKE Fall Fest, at Phi Delta's Halloween Hysteria, and at Spring Sports Spectacular. The Kappa Kappa Gamma's queen candidate at the TKE Fall Fest was also a winner.

Kappa Kappa Gamma was also very busy in community work during the year. They donated a great deal of time and money to their philanthropy, the Ronald McDonald House, and received an award for doing so. The Kappa's during the holiday season, sponsored a needy family and had them over for dinner. Finally, the Kappa's sponsored a penguin at the Indianapolis Zoo.

Lambda Chi Alpha

The 1990-1991 school year was the seventy-fifth anniversary at Butler for Lambda Chi Alpha. Lambda Chi Alpha placed first among male housing units in grades and was competitive in intramural athletics. Many of its members also participated in intercollegiate athletics.

Lambda Chi's participated in Butler University vocal groups as well as the Butler University marching band. In the fall of 1990, the Lambda Chi's and women of Schwitzer Hall won both the originality award and first place overall at Geneva Stunts. During the fall semester, Lambda Chi Alpha held Watermelon Bust, its annual all-campus event. Activities included watermelon volleyball, a seed-spitting contest, and a Melon Bust Queen contest.

With the help of the Butler-Tarkington neighborhood, Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity and Alpha Phi sorority collected food for the homeless of Indianapolis. This week-long event is known as 'Pantry Raid'.

Pi Beta Phi

The Indiana Gamma chapter of Pi Beta Phi had an exciting and successful year in 1990-1991. The Pi Phi's kept themselves active during the year, which earned the chapter and several individuals awards and recognition.

The Pi Phi's started the year by winning the Spirit Award at Sigma Chi's Derby Days, and the banner competition at Watermelon Bust sponsored by Lambda Chi Alpha. At Geneva Stunts, the Indiana Gammas were given an award for the highest number of members attending a date rape lecture sponsored by T.R.U.S.T. In the spring of 1991, the Pi Phi's displayed their pride and spririt brighter than ever by winning Delta Tau Delta's Spirit Award at Trik-La-Tron for their donations to Riley's Children's Hospital, and they also placed second overall at the annual event, as well as another second place finish at Phi Psi 500.

Indiana Gammas not only excelled at Butler during 1990-91, but they also were recognized by their national fraternity. At Pi Beta Phi's annual State Day luncheon the Pi Phi's from Butler won four out of six awards. The awards included Most Improved Grades for an Indiana Chapter, Highest Grade Point Average for an Indiana Chapter, and individually Jodi Carlton won the Mu Provinces Chapter Service Award while Lori Davenport was named Pi Beta Phi's Outstanding Sophomore for Indiana. In 1990-91 Pi Phi's put a lot of time and effort into helping their own philanthropies. Indiana Gamma's held a Halloween party for the children of Christamore House in Indianapolis, as well as a Christmas party in early December for the neglected children. In April, the Indiana Gamma's sponsored their second annual Founder's Day Walk/Run with all proceeds going to two of Pi Beta Phi's six national philanthropies.

Residential Hall

The first year for Resco to be filled with students proved to be a very busy one. In the fall the men and women of Resco paired up with the commuters to take second place in Geneva Stunts. In the spring the men and women were split up but that did not stop the men of Resco along with the women of Kappa Kappa Gamma from taking first prize in Spring Sing.

In the spring Resco sponsored it's first annual all-campus event called the Resco Road Rally. Even though the event was a little rained out, the students of Resco felt it was a success because they got it off the ground.

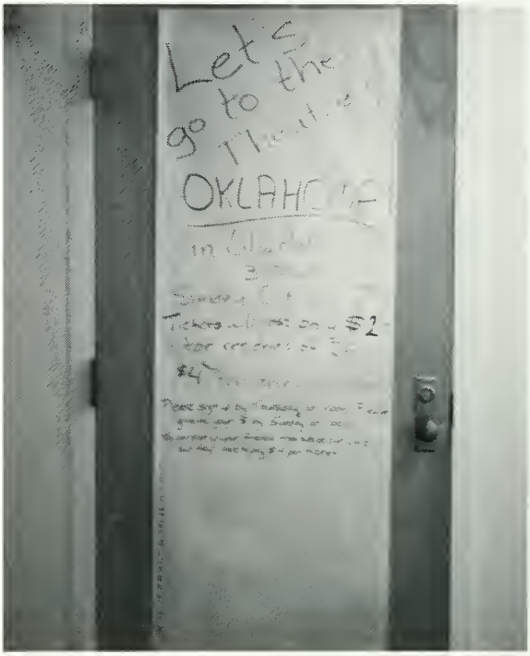
Schwitzer Hall

The women of Schwitzer Hall and the men of Lambda Chi Alpha spent many hours of hard work preparing their Geneva Stunts skit. This hard work not only paid off by bringing the duo a first place finish, it also brought new friendships and a new recognition to Schwitzer.

Rhonda Hooper, a sophomore from Schwitzer, felt that winning stunts "made Schwitzer more visible on campus and being paired with Lambda Chi brought the Greeks and the residence hall closer together." To Allison Syrcle, a freshman, stunts was a "fun way to meet people and the way everyone worked together was great."

The theme "It's a Wonderful Death" was director Julie Yancich's idea. Julie, who is a freshman, felt "it was hard being director as a freshman but everyone worked hard and that helped."



Doors, such as this one in Schwitzer Hall, prove to be good advertising space for students.

Newcomers and Supporters

When one recalls this past year in sports, we have seen some terrific progress and new innovations. Not only did we continue in the traditional games (basketball, football, etc . . .), but we also saw the emergence of the Crew. Butler's rowing team, and the continuing saga of the soccer team's second season. These new sports did not hog up all the action, which can be verified from the raucous coming from the illustrious Dawg Pound. As the Butler students roared their team from victory to victory beneath the southern basket, opposing team coaches and officials questioned its legitimacy. In the end, the Pound proved to be number one.

Left: Leaping above and beyond the call of ducty Butler's Brock Templin gives his all in a attempt to receive a pass to score another victory.

Top: Cheese! The Butler cheerleaders pose in the favorite cheering section of Butler students — the infamous Dawg Pound. This year many students supported both the efforts of the girls and guys basketball teams from these bleachers.

Above: "We Love You Bulldogs!" proclaim two Butler students. This year the Top Dog game as well as others sported several banners supporting Butler football team. These banners were hung on the back of Hilton U. Brown Theater.

Football Season Breaks Even

The 1990 season was a bit of a downer for the Dawgs. Butler settled for a .500 season, finishing with five wins, five losses, and one tie, after barely missing the division two playoffs a year ago. After winning three consecutive Heartland Conference titles, the Bulldogs finished 5-4-1 in the newly formed Midwest Intercollegiate Football Conference.

The season was not minus some thrilling moments. In their lone tie for the season, the Dawgs were seemingly headed toward a loss at the Butler Bowl against their rivals in the annual Top Dog Game, the University of Indianapolis. Butler trailed 9-3 and had been unable to generate any sort of offense all day. But with just one minute to play, Todd Rehling received a punt, weaved his way down field and went 71 yards for a touchdown. The 4,660 fans on hand went berserk, but Butler had to settle for the tie when the extra point failed.

The season's other highlight game came when the Bulldogs knocked off 15th ranked Ashland 17-3, helped by defensive end Ron Baird's 82 yard interception return for a touchdown.

Senior linebacker Chuck Orban completed a fantastic career at Butler by leading the team with 181 tackles. Baird and team mate Jerry Pianto led the way in sacks with 11 and nine, respectively.

On offense, Todd Roehling was usually the focus. He led Butler with 53 catches, 699 receiving yards, 425 yards in kick returns, and 1,124 all-purpose yards. Wide receiver Eric Voss and running back Kevin Kimble led the Bulldogs in touchdowns with four apiece. Quarterback Ron Kiolbassa threw for over 2,000 yards while completing better than 46% of his passes during the course of the season.

Women's Tennis

The womens tennis team had a fabulous season, winning 13 and losing just three. That also does not include the team's first place finish among the eight team field at the St. Mary's Tournament. The ladies won their first ten matches and went through the first four losing only one individual match (35-1). At the MCC Championship the Bulldogs finished third out of seven teams.

MVP Brandi Kohnle was the #1 singles player for the entire season and finished with an impressive 17-5 mark. In addition, she was 13-7 in doubles matches.

Susie Momper won the team's Mental Attitude award. She had a 17-6 record as Butler's #2 and #3 singles entry. Playing the same role, Jennifer Grimm was 11-3, even more impressive was Grimm's 10-0 mark as the #3 doubles player. Her teammate for most of those matches was Heather Crown. Crown was 16-3 in doubles play and 20-2 as Butler's #5 and #6 singles player.

Jama Schitter, paired with Kohnle, was the team's #1 doubles team for most of their matches. The combo was 11-7. Schitter also was 19-3 as Butler's #4 and #5 singles player. Wendy Butzoe competed as the #3 and #4 player, finishing 16-4.

Head Coach Cleve Brown's team was outstanding from top to bottom. The women probably were the most underated team of all of Butler's sports program. Hopefully they will receive the notoriety they deserve for the outstanding accomplishments they will continue to have in the future.

Butler Swimming

"Quality, not quantity," was the theme for the 1990-91 campaign of the Butler swimmers. Six new school records were posted for the lady Bulldogs and 5 new records for the men. With this much success, one would think the team had an unblemished season record. Well, not quite. The men finished 3-8 on the year and the ladies 1-8. Why the new marks, yet a poor record? It's easy — The personnel Butler has is very talented but there is no depth. Rookie Head Coach Stephen Maxwell only loses one senior on both teams to graduation and is looking forward to the construction of a new athletic facility which will include a new pool. "I've only seen the drawings," Maxwell said. "From these it looks like a tremendous improvement. This project should benefit recruiting and give Butler swimming more recognition. I'm very pleased with the approach taken by the University."

The men were led all season by sophomore Paul Newsome. Newsome trained hard all summer in Indianapolis and his work paid off. Newsome set school records in the 50 and 100-yard freestyles and was a member of 2 relays that also set school records. At the MCC championship meet at Notre Dame, Newsome set a conference record in the 50 free (:21.52) and was named "Conference Swimmer of the Year." Chris Van Kula also had some amazing feats over the course of the year with a school record in the 500 freestyle and the 800 and 200-yard free relays. The 800 free relay members also included Newsome, freshman John Farrar, and senior Robert Lowell. The 200-yard relay had Newsome, Farrar, and junior Brian Boyle joining Van Kula for the school records. Freshman Jim Sweeney and sophomore Glenn Johnson improved steadily over the year and finaled at the conference meet in 3 events each. Lowell, the lone senior, contributed greatly over his 4 years at Butler and in his final meet. He placed in every event in which he was entered. Maxwell said of the conference meet; "We scored more points with fewer men with no outstanding swimmers, Newsome wasn't expected to do as well as he did."

For the women, Coach Maxwell believes this team will be one to look out for in the future. "The women are about a year away from real success, we just need to get the numbers up." That success will be based on a group of swimmers who made some big waves this year. Dyan Lodde set 3 individual school records in the 100, 500, and the 1650-yard freestyle events. Lodde is only a freshman and was also on the 200-medley relay team with Mindy Bodin, Trish Davis, and Kristin Runge that set another school record. Sophomore Melissa Ramey established a new mark in the 400-yard individual medley and was joined by Davis, Sara Watson, and Tracy Thomson to set another record in the 200-freestyle relay. Newcomer Michelle Hilary made good strides over the year and cut a full minute off her mile time. Carla Richie-Imel improved at the conference meet and with more training will contribute with points next year. Freshman diver Julie Funn gave the Bulldogs valuable points in her two events. "With more confidence on the board, she should be very competitive come conference time next year," says Maxwell. The ladies will lose no one and will only get better. Maggie Skibba and Diane Layton are expected to come back following a year off and recruiting will help improve the depth on the team.

Women's Team Successful

The Butler University Women's Basketball Team completed their most successful season ever at the Division I level. The Lady Bulldogs finished 21-8 overall and 10-6 in MCC competition as they reached the twenty win plateau for a second consecutive year.

It was an unforgettable season for the team, though sometimes being overshadowed by the turnaround of the men's program, as the Lady Bulldogs raced out to a 10-0 start and were one of only five unbeaten Division I teams in the country by the time January rolled around.

One of the most, if not the most exciting wins in program history occurred in Butler's second outing of the season. The Lady Bulldogs traveled to Nashville, TN to play in the O'Charley's Tournament. After defeating Furman University in the opening round, the "Dawgs" went up against Vanderbilt, the nation's number 12 ranked team. Butler shocked the Vanderbilt home crowd by shooting an unbelievable 91% in the second half and coming from ten points behind at half time to win 91-88.

Butler finally began to receive national recognition by being ranked as high as #29 in the country. But Notre Dame, ranked in the top 25, proved again to be the team the Lady Bulldogs could not shake. Butler finished second in the MCC behind the Fighting Irish and lost three times to their nemesis, which had also prevented the team from being crowned champions the year before as well. Notre Dame provided Butler its only home setback of the season and also defeated them in the MCC Tournament championship, though the "Dawgs" hung tough, trailing by just one point with less than four minutes to play. Much to the dismay of Head Coach, Paulette Stein, Butler was left dry in their bid to gain a spot in the NIT. But the future appears bright and with the direction the program is heading, the NCAA tournament seems to be a possibility for 1992.

Sophomore Julie Von Dielingen was the star. She was a First Team All-MCC selection and a Kodak All-American candidate. She led Butler with 20.2 points and 9.6 rebounds a game, while shooting better than 53% from the field, Von Dielingen finished first in the MCC in scoring and second in rebounding. Nikki Anderson the lone senior, capped a brilliant career at Butler by finishing sixth on the school's all-time scoring 1st. She finished second in team scoring with almost 13 points a game. Both Anderson and Von Dielingen went over the 1,000 point plateau for their careers. Freshman Angela Cotton was named MCC Newcomer of the Year. Cotton contributed over 9 points and almost 6 rebounds a game. As a team Butler finished first in free throw percentages, shooting 77%.

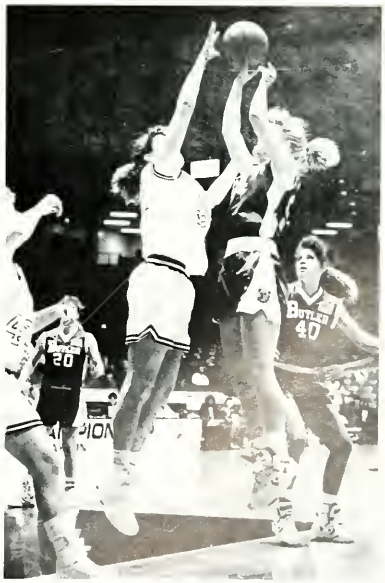
First Team All-MCC Julie Von Dielingen takes it to the hoop in the MCC title game against Notre Dame. Von Dielingen was among the nation's scoring, field goal percentage, and free throw percentage leaders.



Point guard Mary Majewski looks to dish the ball off. The sophomore finished first in the conference in steals and was among the leaders in assists.

Bottom right: Senior forward Nikki Anderson plays in her final game in a Butler uniform, capping a brilliant four year career, as she goes up for one of her patented jump shots.

Senior John Karaffa drives the lane and goes up with the scoop shot in the MCC Tournament against Loyola.

Men's Basketball 1990-91

Coming off a 6-22 season the year before, expectations were low for the Butler Men's Basketball Team heading into the 1990-91 campaign. The Bulldogs were predicted to finish last once again in the MCC. They were a modest 2-2 after four games. But then something unusual began to occur. It started with a win over Notre Dame. The fourteen point win resulted in the students swarming the court, a sight which hadn't been witnessed at the Field House in years. Then came a double overtime win over Wisconsin from the Big Ten. The crowds were getting bigger, the cheers louder, empty seats scarcer, and the team began to become the talk of the campus. The 'Dawgs' then shocked Ball State, a team who had advanced to the Sweet Sixteen of the NCAA Tournament the year before and was eliminated by a basket by the eventual national champions, UNLV. Conference wins followed over perennial powers Dayton, St. Louis, and Evansville.

What was unthinkable before the season started became a reality. Butler, guided by second year Head Coach Barry Collier, was in first place in the MCC, unbeaten in the conference after eight games, and was listed in the USA Today at mid-season as one of the five most surprising teams in the nation. Suddenly there was talk of NCAA Tournament and the Field House was rocking once again. The Dawg Pound made life a living hell for visiting teams. The student section heckled visiting teams like few other places could.

At the end though, perennial NCAA Tournament participant Xavier would prove to be too strong. Xavier won both meetings against the Bulldogs down the stretch and Butler settled for second place in the MCC. In another loss versus Evansville at the Field House, many team and NCAA records were broken. Butler set a team record for most points scored (and also most given up) in a memorable 136-128 double overtime loss that left fans clinging to the edge of their seats. Butler overcame an 11 point deficit in the final two periods combined to set NCAA records for most fouls (85) and freethrows (97) in a game. Ten players fouled out and Evansville only had five eligible players left by game's end.

In the first round of the MCC Tournament, Butler was upset by Loyola, but still reached post season play, settling for an NIT bid. In the first round match-up, the 'Dawgs' traveled to the University of Wyoming and lost a close affair, 63-61.

Despite the end-of-season slump, Butler finished 18-11 and there is extreme optimism heading into the 1991-92 season. Guard Darin Archbold was MCC Player of the Year as a junior. Archbold scored over 30 points six times. He averaged 21.8 points per game, shot 46% from three point range, and led the nation in free throw percentage, shooting better than 91%. Ironically as a team, the men led the nation in free throw percentage, as did their women counterparts.

Senior forward Brett Etherington dazzled fans with his electrifying dunks and contributed 12.5 points and 6 rebounds a game. Another senior, John Karaffa, had a brilliant season as he pumped in 10.5 points and grabbed over four rebounds a game. Center J.P. Brens proved to be a force in the middle. Only a sophomore, Brens led the team with seven rebounds a game. Freshman Jermaine Guice was named to the MCC All-Newcomer Team. Guice was a deadly three point threat in his freshman season and scored better than ten points a game. Point guard Tim Bowen directed the offense effectively, leading the team with almost six assists and over two steals a game.

Head Coach Barry Collier was MCC Coach of the Year and deserved so. A turnaround from 6-22 to 18-11 with almost the same starting five speaks for itself.

With the Butler program back in the limelight, even bigger and better things are expected from the Bulldogs in 1992. Stay tuned!

Women's Volleyball

For the sixth straight season the Butler Women's Volleyball team finished with a winning record, racking up 23 wins against just 12 losses. They also ran their regular season MCC conference winning streak to 21 games, dating back to 1987, by finishing 7-0 in the MCC. After a slow 3-5 start the Bulldogs began to find their stride by rolling to victory in matches in the Butler Tournament and later in the Butler Invitational. The going got tougher in the MCC Tournament, as the ladies had to settle for runner-up for a third consecutive year, losing to Dayton in the finals.

Seniors Beth Christiansen and Stacia Mellinger capitulated fabulous careers at Butler by each being named 1990 MCC Co-Player of the Year. In addition both were named to GTE Academic All-America Teams. Christiansen finished in the top three in virtually every statistical category at Butler and set a school record with eight aces in one match. She was MVP of the Butler Invitational and also gained All-Tournament Team at the Buckeye and Butler Invitationals. She finished first on Butler's all-time assist list and broke her own single match record by accumulating 71 assists. Sophomore Jessica Taylor was named to the All-MCC Second Team and led Butler with 367 digs.

Butler Golf

The Butler Golf Team led by team MVP Chad Hutsell, finished a successful fall campaign which saw the season get off to a quick start. In their very first match the Bulldogs won the 14 team Eastern Illinois Invitational. Hutsell was the overall winner with a 73, tying for Butler's best individual score during the fall. Hutsell also shot a 73 against Purdue and teammate Joe Chaille duplicated that same score at the Butler Invitational.

Captain Doug Chase won the team's Mental Attitude Award. Chase shot a 74 at Eastern Illinois, as well as Purdue. He also finished with a team best of 158 over two rounds at the Indiana Intercollegiate Championship.

Overall, Butler finished the fall portion of their season with an impressive 56-41 record.

Persian Gulf

Tension was not only found in Persian Gulf during 1990 and 1991, but on the campus as well.

Throughout the entire school year the Gulf was an area of interest and concern for students. Iraq invaded Kuwait only a few weeks before classes started and at the end of the year U.S. troops were still in Iraq.

The conflict was the subject of many lectures, debates and letters to the Collegian throughout the year. A TV was placed in the C-Club, so students could watch the news coverage of the war.

Students and faculty wore ribbons to show their feelings about the war: yellow or orange for support, black for protest.

Students also got involved. Protestors participated in peace marches, not only in Indianapolis, but in Washington D.C. as well. Supporters wrote letters and sent care packages to soldiers stationed in the Gulf, other students sacrificed even more, including Brett Nicely who had to withdraw from his fall classes when he received orders to go to the Gulf.

The war, although relatively brief, deeply affected the opinions and lives of everyone and we were not spared the consequences simply because we were in school.

Although students may have disagreed whether the United States was doing the right thing, all would agree that it changed the feeling of the school year.

Top: Flags were used as a symbol during the war by both supporter and protestors, as shown by this man at the Washington D.C. Peace March.

Above: Soldiers returning to Fort Benjamin Harrison from the Gulf War wave and give the "V" for victory sign to their comrades.

Totally

Essential

Did you Know . . . Throughout the year the fate of the Speech Pathology Department was debated? The speech lab helped several students and community members with speech problems, as shown by this photo of a speech major teaching a local boy. However, some administrators felt that the program was unnecessary for Butler. The debate was not settled by the end of the school year. This issue is just one example of the many changes that the school and the students went through as they tried to discover what was TOTALLY ESSENTIAL.
